

have to hire for and develop that culture. The people who have been there 10-15 years won't change. They don't even recognize the damage they are doing, to people and to innovation, while the company is telling them to 'build bridges' and they rationalize that's exactly what they are doing."